This legislation covers a wide breadth of issues including everything from name changes of park units to creation of new national parks. Local and state support of any legislation is of particular importance to the Subcommittee. Highlights of the legislation considered and passed by the Subcommittee in the 106th Congress include authorizing the collection of film fees for commercial use in national parks, reauthorizing the Historic Preservation Act, authorizing numerous historic site and wild and scenic river designations, and creating the Black Canyon National Park. Also, the Subcommittee conducts oversight functions on an assortment of important issues. Past oversight has included hearings and examinations of franchise fee miscalculations, the proposed prohibition of snowmobiles in national park units, and the Administration's dubious creation of national monuments.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON FISHERIES CONSERVATION, WILDLIFE AND OCEANS

I. INTRODUCTION

During the third Republican-controlled Congress since 1954, the Subcommittee on Fisheries Conservation, Wildlife and Oceans, under the leadership of Chairman Jim Saxton of Mount Holly, New Jersey, explored topics ranging from the bottom of the ocean to the top of the world in the Arctic.

By any objective standard, the Subcommittee had an extremely productive and successful legislative record during the 106th Congress. The Subcommittee's accomplishments included the reauthorization of key conservation laws, such as the Coastal Barrier Resources Act; the Coastal Wetlands Planning, Protection, and Restoration Act; the Fishermen's Protective Act; the Junior Duck Stamp Conservation and Design Program Act; the National Marine Sanctuaries Act; and the Yukon River Salmon Act. The Subcommittee also approved measures to legislatively create three new National Wildlife Refuge units in Alabama and Louisiana. These include the Cahaba River National Wildlife Refuge, the Cat Island National Wildlife Refuge, and the Red River National Wildlife Refuge. In the past, the Subcommittee has approved legislation to assist in the conservation of endangered elephants, rhinoceroses, and tigers. During this Congress, the Subcommittee expanded that assistance to include great apes and neotropical migratory birds with the enactment of the Great Ape Conservation Act and the Neotropical Migratory Bird Conservation Act. After two years of careful deliberation, the Subcommittee took a leadership role in advocating the Oceans Act of 2000. This bill established an Ocean Commission to carefully examine our existing ocean programs and to make recommendations to Congress on how these programs can be improved. Finally, the highlights of the Subcommittee must include a measure to protect the fragile Arctic tundra (Arctic Tundra Habitat Conservation Act), to establish a commission to promote the awareness and revitalization of our National Wildlife Refuge System (National Wildlife Refuge System Centennial Act), and a measure to conserve vital estuary lands in the Chesapeake Bay region. While the Subcommittee approved measures to assist in the conservation of Atlantic striped bass, coral reefs, marine mammals, Pacific salmon and sharks, regrettably these bills did not make it through the legislative process.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON ENERGY AND MINERAL RESOURCES

I. INTRODUCTION

During the 106th Congress the Subcommittee on Energy and Mineral Resources began work by enacting a reauthorization of the National Geologic Mapping Act with an amendment furthering participation of the various state geologic surveys in this cooperative program to produce maps and geologic data prioritized to abate natural hazards, protect groundwater supplies, identify mineral resource potential for land-use planning, and otherwise meet national needs.

The Subcommittee went on to separately consider and pass bills to amend the Mineral Leasing Act with respect to the acreage any one entity may hold under federal lease, statewide and nationwide, for sodium compounds (such as trona, a sodium sesquicarbonate ore mineral) and coal resources. These amendments were made necessary by industry consolidation brought on by changing global markets conditions which made the older threshold acreages too small to allow our domestic industry to adequately compete. Both measures were signed into law.

The Subcommittee also spearheaded oversight and later investigative hearings into controversial payments received by two Federal employees involved in crafting a rule on oil and gas valuations from an outside group which had an interest in these regulations.

II. JURISDICTION

SUBCOMMITTEE ON FORESTS AND FOREST HEALTH

I. INTRODUCTION

In the 106th Congress, the Subcommittee on Forests and Forest Health achieved its goals within the oversight plan proposed at the beginning of the Congress. The Subcommittee held 33 oversight hearings focusing primarily on forest health, wildland fuels, recreation, wildlife, and access issues. This oversight uncovered serious problems with the Administration's management of federal forests and implementation of its policies. For example, through subpoenas and document requests, the Subcommittee was able to show violations by the Administration in developing its roadless policy and in implementing specific road closures.

The Subcommittee initiated a number of audits by the General Accounting Office (GAO) addressing fire and fuels management, land management planning procedures, eco-region assessments, Forest Service merger with the Bureau of Land Management, roadless policy impacts on forest health, and mismanagement of the Agency. The GAO was highly critical of the Forest Service's efforts in each of these areas. The Committee also successfully advanced a legislative proposal to significantly modify, improve, and increase the funding for the Federal Government's fuel management programs, a major first step towards more aggressive forest management and stewardship.

The Subcommittee also advanced numerous land conveyance bills to streamline the management and improved the use of national forest lands. The Subcommittee's legislative agenda culminated in the enactment of the Secure Rural Schools and Community Self-Determination Act of 2000 (Public Law 106–393). This Act will provide rural areas with financial stability in revenues used for community schools and roads, and will also provide funds for communities to apply to collaborative projects on federal forests.
